

HUNGER IS A RACIAL EQUITY ISSUE

Monday, July 16, 2018, 7:00 PM – 8:30 PM

Grimes Lounge at Johnson C. Smith University, Charlotte, NC

SPEAKER:

Minerva Delgado

SPEAKER BIO:

Minerva Delgado is Director of Coalitions & Advocacy at the Alliance to End Hunger in Washington, DC. Ms. Delgado has more than twenty-eight years of experience working to end hunger and poverty. As an experienced policy analyst, organizer and program manager, she has held senior positions in government, civil rights and anti-poverty organizations. Ms. Delgado holds degrees from The New School and Cornell University. She is from The Bronx, NY.

PURPOSE OF DISCUSSION:

Ms. Delgado will lead participants through Bread for the World Institute's Racial Wealth Gap Learning Simulation to illustrate the connections between racial equity, hunger, poverty and wealth. This interactive tool will demonstrate the reality of how racial inequity plays a role in the likelihood of whether someone will experience hunger. Participants will leave the session with an understanding of how racial disparities result from social policies as well as gain awareness and tools to apply a racial equity lens to anti-hunger and poverty work.

Learn more at rafiusa.org/cttt/speaker-series/

REGISTER FOR THE EVENT:

<https://bit.ly/2KR2pJn>

This event is made possible by

James B. Duke
THE DUKE ENDOWMENT