

A RAFL Equity at the Table Training

This training is divided into two parts, 1) developing board recruitment practices designed to bring more people of color into leadership roles and 2) thinking beyond equity to create fair and just environments for people of color to participate on boards.

Inspired by interviews with people of color who serve on food, farming, or agriculture boards, this training offers skill-building techniques for constructing cultural competency while also addressing the challenges of recruiting for diversity and inclusion.
